Pres. Stresses Honor

In Opening Speech

by Shari Jensen
University Staff Writer

President Ernest L. Wilkinson stressed the importance of maintaining and upholding high moral standards in his speech yesterday asking students back to BYU. Speaking to several thousand students gathered for the Devotional assembly, President Wilkinson also mentioned the importance of upholding every facet of the Honor Code.

"By permitting a student to violate the Honor Code, we encourage him to become a second rate citizen," said the president.

He emphasized that each student who registered at BYU used his free agency in choosing to come to the school. When the student was accepted he signed a statement that he would support the honor code and rules at BYU.

"If you did not understand that when you registered and you don't intend to obey the Honor Code, you may go to the registrar's office and get your money back," he said.

Commenting on the difference between BYU and other schools, President Wilkinson said that our concern should be from outside influences rather than to embarrass the church and the university.

"You students are here to build—not to destroy—this university," he explained.

"With over 22,000 day-time students, BYU is the largest church-oriented university in the nation," announced the president.

"We can take pride in the fact that even though we are so large, we are still the friendliest university," he commented.

"By properly exercising free agency on the campus," continued the president, "the students can give BYU the reputation for having the finest, smartest, and most orderly student body in the world."

Classes Compete As Clubs

By Holly Smith
Staff Writer

Class clubs feature prominently in class government's comeback campaign.

This statement from Ken Murdock, president of the class clubs, announced the formation of class clubs to enter into inter-class competition.

Competition will be between the classes in many cases and in already existing events such as College Bowl and Skating-Francis. It will involve three areas—athletics, culture, and academics.

REPRESENTATIVE CLASS

Sporting club members have the opportunity to join their club athletic club and represent the class in golf, swimming, volleyball, track and field events and other sports.

In the Culture area, the class clubs will compete in the Arts, Sing-a-Franse, Songfest, and Winter Carnival.

Academic club members will participate in College Bowl, debates, speech contests and the overall G.P.A. competition.

Points will be awarded the classes placing first, second and third. The end-of-the-year point total will be tabulated, and the class with the most points will receive the largest traveling trophy for overall class competition.

CLASS IDENTITY

"Class government is trying to stress the importance of identifying with the classes and coming to accommodate this to let students 'savor,'" Murdoch said. "Class clubs provide the opportunity for more student involvement."

"In the past we've tended to have only class officers and members of the Senate and House of Representatives to represent the clubs in these areas," Murdoch continued. "From now on, we hope the clubs will reach out and pull in students."

"The variety of possible club activities is endless," Murdoch said. "We're certain there will be at least one activity to interest every student on campus."

Students interested in participating in these activities are asked to see their class officers at 422-424 FLWC, or call Ext. 3670 or Ext. 3803. Class officers will also visit dorms to explain the program.

Ticket Policy

It wasn't too long ago that student seats at a BYU football game were at a valuable premium.

The old stadium, last used in 1963, held less than half the present stadium capacity. Now there are enough seats for virtually everyone, but there are new complications.

"Book seating and an excellent early bird section combine to add rules on seating where once there was no seating. The ticket policy is explained on pg. 18.

Gridders To Clash With Iowa State

Coach Tommy Hudspeth's 1968 Cougar football squad gets a chance to show the home-town folks how they do on the gridiron when they go to battle against Iowa State tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the BYU stadium.

This is BYU's big inter-sectional game of the year. The Cyclones wear a Big Eight sticker and the Mountain Cats will be out to trim them down as they did Pacific Eight representative Oregon State a year ago.

So far this season, BYU stands 1-0, with a 17-7 victory over a good Western Michigan team.

Coach Johnny Majors of Iowa State, who is shaping a new football image at Ames, will bring a team to Provo that has a 1-1 record for games played thus far.

The Cyclones upset Buffalo, 28-10 in the opener and last Saturday dropped a 12-21 decision to Western Athletic Conference member Arizona.

IOWA TO BE TOUGH

Even though the Cougars are expected to have the advantage in experienced personnel and lettermen, they are not taking the Big Eight team lightly.

This is especially true in light of the Y's showing against Western Michigan last week.

"We won the game, and we deserved to win," said Hudspeth, "but actually we weren't ready to play; certainly not had we been hoped to play."

The BYU coach went on to explain that injuries during pre-season practice had forced the Cougars to postpone the heavy contact work they had hoped for in preparing for the opener.

"If the team didn't look as sharp as some had expected, it wasn't the players' fault," he explained. "It was just a case of not being ready to hit with the authority we might have otherwise had."

DEFENSE PRAISED

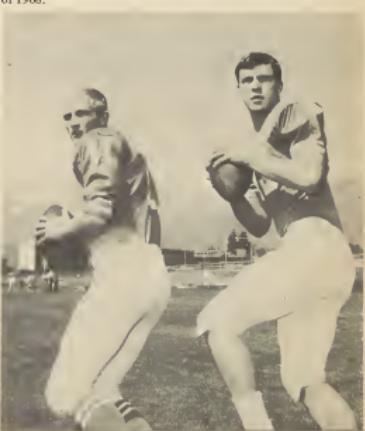

The Cougar staff was laudatory in its evaluation of some phases of the BYU performance. The Cougar defense, which held Western Michigan to a total of 65 yards rushing, made the breaks that spelled the difference in the game.

Cougar defenders intercepted three passes and recovered three of five Bronco fumbles.

Offensively, the Cougars came up with more questions than answers about their ability to move the football. However, Hudspeth is of the opinion that the offense will soon be rolling.

Saturday afternoon's game, which was played on 70 per cent humidity at Kalamazoo, may have cost the Cougars two players for this weekend. Offensive guard Mike Zeller twisted his knee and isn't expected to return Saturday night, and middle guard Sam Harris suffered a painful leg injury that may keep him out of action.

A crowd of 25-30,000 is expected for the Cougars first home game of 1968.

GETTING READY

... for Saturday night's football game with Iowa State are Terry Sanford, left, and Marc Lyons. Sanford is slated to start for the Cougars in their first home game.

BYU Perspective . . .

Howard Hughes For President

By Glen Willardson

I was passing through the Wilkinson Center yesterday when I saw a man hiding behind the door motioning with his hand for me to come in. As I entered the room a dim light went on and I glanced across the room where I saw a large sign on the wall—"Howard Hughes for President—Campaign Headquarters."

Naturally I became intrigued as I watched a dozen or more people behind tables hurriedly addressing envelopes and pasting Howard Hughes stickers on the covers of BYU notebooks.

There was a man sitting at a desk who said he was campaign manager for Hughes and he invited me to sit down.

"I didn't know Howard Hughes was running for President," I said.

"He doesn't know he's running either," the campaign manager said. "We're running him without his permission because we need him in the top executive spot."

"But why Howard Hughes?"

"Because he's the best man for the job. He's just bought Las Vegas, which is only a prelude to his buying the whole state of Nevada. He's got a bigger financial stake in this country than any other man, and we feel he's the last person that would let it go to pot."

"That makes sense," I said. "But why else would he make a good President?"

"He would be a life-saver to the economy. Right now he's worth more than Fort Knox, and he's the only one in this country who would never have to go to Congress and ask for money. Any funds he wanted for his administration could come from his own pocket. That would eliminate the national debt."

"That sounds like a vote-getter. Do you think he stands a chance of appearing on campus?"

"Not at all," he said. "We'd have to get more than 15,000 signatures from students on a petition before he'd even consider sending us a closed-circuit broadcast."

"But it seems to me that if he became our next President the people would like to see him once in a while."

"That's where you're wrong," the campaign manager said. "The trouble with Americans is that they get too much exposure from their Presidents. They know everything that's going on in the White House from the Pink Room to the kitchen. Hughes would change this concept by adding mystery to the presidency."

"But how would he deliver his "State of the Union message?" I asked with the assurance that I had him glued to the wall on this matter.

"He could slip it under the door or drop it down the laundry chute—and thus save his identity from being revealed."

"Okay, that's fine as far as Americans are concerned, but what happens when a foreign head-of-state comes to Washington—Hughes would have to see him."

"He would meet him at 2 a.m. in a dark alley. Don't you see what this would mean for foreign relations? No country would ever be sure where the President was, or even if there was a President. It would put some fear in the Russians and Red Chinese. I believe one of the reasons President Johnson is having so much trouble is that he keeps saying that he's willing to meet with them at any time, anywhere. They know he's always there, so they're not in a hurry to see him."

"But with Hughes they'd never be sure if they could see him or not," the campaign manager continued.

"Of course they would," I said excitedly. They'd be pounding on his door and maybe even break it down trying to see him."

"Yes, but they wouldn't know which door to knock on, would they?"

"I must say you put up a very convincing argument for Howard Hughes' candidacy. How are you going to overcome the opposition of the two major parties?"

"We're trying a strategy that nobody's used before. The day before elections we've purchased prime time on all of the major networks and we're going to announce the candidacy at that time. By then we hope everyone will be tired of hearing from the other candidates and will choose a new one."

"So you're keeping everything secret until Nov. 4?" I asked.

"Yes, that's right. And we'll need your help in making sure no one hears about this."

"I won't tell a soul."

Political Fervor Mounts At BYU

Confusion seems to reign most everywhere on campus during the first week of school and one cannot help but notice a medium-sized table conveniently situated in front of the Wilkinson Center which adds to this turmoil.

Around this rallying point are sitting some very enthusiastic and slightly vociferous supporters of presidential hopeful George C. Wallace. To say that they are organized would be an understatement.

At this point, the support they have generated overshadows that of the other candidates. Yesterday afternoon a massive rally was watched by upwards of 250 onlookers. In addition, over 150 interested students attended the first meeting of "Youth For Wallace" Wednesday evening.

According to Doug Schell, BYU student and co-ordinator of the "Youth Movement" in Utah, the organization for Wallace on campus is probably the best of any university in the country.

Possible plans for the future include: a motorcade from Provo to Salt Lake City if Wallace accepts an invitation to speak there; closed circuit television coverage of a Wallace speech, and one-page ads in various newspapers.

As of the present, considerable comment controversy have been generated from strategically located table, and more will surely arise since it has a permanent resting place scheduled until November 10.

As elections draw closer, the hubub of political activity will surely intensify. The system opposition and debate which is part of our heritage is vital in preserving the American system of government.

It would be both interesting and educational supports of other candidates demonstrated much dedication and color as this faithful crew Wallace mainstays. Possibly some debates exchanges could be arranged between different groups.

We sincerely hope that the desire to air divergent views and ideas will go beyond the present campus and shape the year to come.

LOUD BOARD

(Editor's Note: This column is devoted to questions which students or faculty have about the University. The University administration is invited to get the answers to your questions. Address your inquiries to Soundboard, Daily Universe, 538 ELWC, BYU.)

Dear Editor,

A number of schools in this country (including Ricks College) begin fall semester early enough to have final exams all over and done with before Christmas and thus avoid our present two-week "lame duck" session after Christmas. This seems to be an excellent idea for BYU? What do the administration, faculty and students think of the idea?

Russell T. Pack
Assistant Professor Department of Chemistry

Dear Russell:

In talking with Grant Richards and Paul Gentho of the ASBYU presidency, we were informed this issue of a change in University scheduling was presented to President Wilkinson before classes dismissed last May.

Paul showed us this memo from President Wilkinson. "The master of whether we shall have a tri-monther or a bi-monther of a quarterly system is under comprehensive study by one of our research experts. We are not going to make a judgment on this on the basis of superficial evidence." . . . Ernest L. Wilkinson

A study has been made and is currently under consideration—the results of which are yet unannounced.

Thanks for writing,
Soundboard

Dear Editor:

I am directing this letter to Laurel Cole (BANYAN editor for this year) concerning the color photography for the publication. Like many others, I was quite disappointed with the results of the color in last year's book, which was due largely to the lack of quality in the color separations.

As I understand it, the bids are now being accepted for the color processing of this year's Banyan separations—which will later be made into plates and printed by the BYU Press. I felt that the color separation work in the 1966-67 Banyan was far superior to that of last year's, and that they were done by company in Los Angeles, who last year they were sent to Wheellight Company in Salt Lake City.

My point is—was the reason for the switch purely economical reason or could there have been other factors—excluding, of course, convenience, et al. Will the BANYAN staff agree to contract the same company as last year and again take a chance quality far below that to be expected from a universal publication—or will they contact the company offering the best quality for the money whether it happens to be local or otherwise? Reed P. Smoot

Dear Reed:

In talking with Laurel Cole, find you are one of the photographers for the Banyan year. I feel confident you picked an organization to work with. The matter about the color answered in Laurel's memo: "Send out each year for our color separations. Last year we got the best price for the color; this year we'll have the best quality." Buy Banyan, Reed; it sounds great.

To Whom It May Concern . . .

Get A Job

By Larry Wright

I have finally realized that comments like those of George Putnam's Wednesday UNIVERSE editorial, "What It Means To Be Poor" are of little value.

Before last summer, I enthusiastically endorsed the George Putnams, Paul Harveys and even George Wallaces. It seemed to me that these were the real men of courage—the voices we needed to hear.

But now it doesn't seem so.

George Putnam says that there has been "Too much mis-emphasis and misconception concerning that word 'poor'."

He decries the looting and burning—and the handouts of taxpayers' hard-earned dollars by "phony politicians." Today's poor, he implies, should get up off their "big fat bottoms" and go out and get a job. The poor that Putnam knew were "starving hungry poor—but they went to work and sweated."

IRRESPONSIBILITY

To me, his attitude is irresponsibility of the worst kind. This is a distortion of reality and a misquading of the American people.

I worked this summer as city editor of a southern California newspaper in a Black area—Compton. Watts was part of our circulation area. I worked with Black people, Black police, Black militants.

I became acutely aware of their feelings and realized that the George Putnams are doing far more harm than good.

By merely proposing that the poor "get jobs," lamenting the sad state to which we have fallen, Putnam has directed our attention away from the real causes of the problems. He has created a diversion—a smokescreen—which allows the real problems to flourish unnoticed and unnoticed.

BLACKS

When we speak of the poor, we are speaking primarily of Blacks. Blacks who live in urban ghettos and seldom see Whites. Blacks who resent White affluence. Blacks whose attitudes toward law and order are far different from our own. Blacks whose standards of living are so different from ours that they do not realize the value of George Putnam's tender reminiscing.

By smugly and sanctimoniously admonishing the poor to "get up off their problem" and get a job, we are failing completely to begin to solve the problems which have caused the poverty.

That's like observing that weeds in the front lawn are an eyesore and then disposing of them by cutting off the tops; they grow back.

It's like becoming alarmed at the sight of a person bleeding, and then merely wiping away the blood: it doesn't stem the flow.

ATTACK CAUSES

We have got to stop getting so righteously indignant about our poor and begin to attack the causes of the problems. By continuing to pay homage at the electronic altars of George Putnam and Paul Harvey, we will allow our poverty problems to multiply.

Contrast the Putnam "get a job" syndrome with comments made by Senator Muskie, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, at BYU last week:

"A clash is emerging between two groups—those who would like to return to small-town America, with everything clear-cut and well known; and those who have known only dirty streets and impersonal government."

"The important decision to be made by every American is whether he is ready to so organize our society as to give every American a chance to improve his life."

"We need to deal with the social causes that create riots."

"We need to generate confidence that the American political system provides a way for the dissenters. When they have that confidence, they will choose the right road."

ALARM

"We will not achieve that confidence by crying out in alarm, but by working at it firmly and dispassionately."

The key to a realistic politics was given by Thomas Jefferson: You cannot create a secure and safe society built upon indigence, ignorance and oppression. And quoting Senator Muskie again, "All the police clubs in the world cannot correct that."

It's time for all the George Putnams to end their loud and glib admonitions to "get a job"—and to start working "firmly and dispassionately" to solve the problems of America.

Tooth Decay End Is Called Likely Within Ten Years, Expert Says

Tooth decay, a disease that affects at least 98 per cent of Americans may be preventable within 10 years, the director of the National Institute of Dental Research said recently.

Dr. Ronald J. Gibbons, one of three scientists, conducting this research explained that an enzyme, Dextrinase, has been initially successful with animals in experiments to kill the microorganisms that attack the teeth and create cavities.

Several research groups are trying to find a comparable key to the plaque that is formed by another group of bacteria, called diphtheroids, which are thought to be a major factor in periodontal disease and decay at the base and roots of teeth.

Senators Give Views . . .

By Clyde Haucke
Staff Writer

In spite of numerous technical problems which almost caused the cancellation of the program, the 1968-69 television season opened in the Varsity Theater yesterday.

Speaking on the first of the series, Senators Charles Percy, Edward Brooke and Wallace Bennett spoke to an audience of students at Arizona State University, University of Utah, University of Wyoming and BYU.

SUPPORT

Senators Percy and Brooke began the lecture with statements supporting Senator Muskie. They then answered questions and an audience session began. The lecture picked up considerably, however, as soon as the students began to voice their thoughts.

Broadway Show Trip Scheduled

Brigham Young University sets another "first" with its new tour of New York Broadway shows directed by Dr. Charles Metten of the Speech Department. The tour begins November 22 through December 1.

"I've hoped for this type of thing for six years," commented Dr. Metten. "Now, students can actually have an opportunity to see what's really important in theater."

Tickets have already been obtained for the following plays: "Fiddler on the Roof," "In a City of Players," starring Anne Bancroft, "The Story of La Boheme," "The First Round," "The Price," and "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" starring the best actress of 1968, Zoe Caldwell.

"Memories last forever, and this is one memory that students should not fail to take advantage of," said Dr. Metten.

As well as seeing and critiquing the Broadway plays, Dr. Metten has arranged for a complete tour of the N.Y. Film Festival, including taping of drama productions and newsmagazines.

Two semester hours are available to students for either Speech and Dramatic Arts 115 or Theatre Workshop 560.

A cost of $397 for the tour includes round-trip transportation, hotel accommodations and theatre tickets.

Students can obtain additional information by inquiring at Travel Study Room, 202 Herald R. Clark Building.

"Success is just around the corner—only sometimes it's a long block."

Senator Percy responded to a question concerning the actions of Mayor Daley and the Chicago police department during the Democratic National Convention by pointing out the reception Richard Nixon received from the Chicagoans. Percy was enthusiastic in his support of Nixon, adding, "I am for Nixon because he is a man of principle."

A call for a change in the gold standard was supported by Senator Brooke, who said that the Senate Finance Committee had recommended that Nixon should have to supply the plan for Humphrey. "Nixon is the one supplying the crowd and interest," he said.

A one-word comment came from Senator Percy on the claim that the junior senators are the ones who get the most work done in the Senate. The junior Senator from Illinois said that he and his colleagues expected that he was urged by Senator Bennett to become more active in this last legislative term.

SENIORITY

"Seniority is still the only way to get things done," added Senator Percy.

In answer to the charge that Richard Nixon is trying to debate Hubert Humphrey, Senator Percy pointed out that Nixon should have to supply the plan for Humphrey. "Nixon is the one supplying the crowd and interest," he said.

The senator further pointed out that it is no longer expedient for Nixon to debase Humphrey than it was for President Johnson to reject the same plan from Barry Goldwater in 1964.

New Buildings On Campus

By Gary Raughman
Staff Writer

During the past two decades BYU has established a building program under the guidance of President Ernest L. Wilkinson that has transformed the campus into one of the most impressive physical plants in the country.

This change has been markedly apparent in recent years. For the past few years several new structures have risen to completion, and this year is no exception. There are four new buildings presently under construction.

The Life Sciences Building, under construction at the south end of the Eyring Science Center will be the largest on campus when completed. Nine stories high and divided into two sections, one for class rooms and one for laboratories, the $10-million dollar project will house the College of Agricultural and Biological Sciences and should be completed in less than two years.

Immediately north of the Eyring Science Center, the Nuclear Physics Laboratory will be ready for operation later this year. It will be entirely under ground, two stories deep, and constructed entirely of concrete.

To be completed in October, the ROTC Building is located east of the Wilkinson Center parking lot and will contain headquarters for both the Air Force and the Army Officer Training Corps here on campus. Included within the building will be both classrooms and a library.

Also to be finished in October is the new tennis building situated immediately adjacent to the Smith Fieldhouse on the south side. There will be six indoor tennis courts as well as bleacher space for 1,000 people under the building's curved roof.

Wye Magazine co-editors Wendy Johnson and Alan Enke look over a past issue with adviser Douglas Thayer. Students interested in writing, literature, art, design, photography, publicity and layout are needed on this year's staff.

Wye Magazine Staff Holds Open Meeting

All students interested in staff actions on the Wye Magazine, the U student literary publication, may attend the open meeting Thursday, Oct. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in 375 Wilkinson Center.

According to co-editors Wendy Johnson—a senior journalism major in Los Angeles—and Alan Enke—a senior Spanish major from Los Angeles—there is nothing better than art and illustration, sign and layout, photography, publicity and all other phases of magazine production are encouraged to attend the meeting.

The Wye Magazine is published once a year. The fall issue will contain the winning stories from the Mystery Short Story contest of 1968 in which a total of $500.00 was awarded to the authors of the top four stories.

In the past, the Wye Magazine has won several awards in Rocky Mountain Collegiate Press Association competition.

Banyan Price Goes Up After

Another Week Of Sale Effort

Banyan yearbooks will be sold today through Saturday for $7. On Oct. 5 they will cost for $8. Jack and Diane Clark's service is well sell the yearbooks in theidence hills, off-campus housing units and in the Reception Center of ELWC.

BYU's outstanding yearbook has received national recognition each year for the past several years.

Senior Laurel Cole is this year's editor and promises the quality of the 1969 Banyan to be comparable to past years.

For Generations

BY

CULTURE EDITOR

I paused and waited, the morning breeze blew the willow branch across the window pane causing a slight brushing sound. How many times had that same wind blown my willow branch? How many? Don't ask me, I never counted.

For generations willow branches have tapped upon windows as they watched the world live, change and pass by. Those willows had seen much. Not the regular surface, but deep down into an individual's very heart.

I fluffed the pillow under my head and wondered if that willow thought of me and the generation of people I live with. Slowly as if not yet awake, I began to remember.

It had been a cool July day in the shopping center in downtown Washington. Just like the morning now, the sun lightly ruffled the leaves and blew against the face—the only that time it brought with it the smell of dead fish, oil slicks, waste, polluted tanks and rotting garbage.

But the world was wonderful in spite of the filth—I was in love with life, or so I thought. I almost skipped down the dusty dock on my way to my favorite restaurant, where I had dinner. He ate there in the middle of the afternoon; his sweat stained short showed signs of mildew. The ragged Levi pants legs were folded up and tucked into his buck pockets. His legs were gone in their place as was his head.

Above the smell of the docks I could detect the scent of his second-hand cigarette. I was walking even slower now and could see the blackened cigar box at his feet. Yes, he was a boxer.

I was passing him now and as I did, I noticed the ragged man next to him. He looked both ways, scrutinizing the crowds of people bustling along the sidewalk. Examining thus, he inched closer and closer to the boxer. I continued to watch out of the corner of my eye. Slowly he moved over and began taking control of the boxer's box. Noticing this, the boxer screeched a curse and lashed out, but was unable to fight off those two legged, "whole" men. Many people in the crowd saw, but did nothing. I turned my head and walked on, feeling a sick disgust creeping up my spine.

They watched and listened, seeing all.

No one stopped to answer the call, A call for help, a yell, a plain "Help!" Not one answered, not even me.

Many people passed by that day but no one stopped, nor could they say,

"I helped a man who needed me." No, no one stopped, not even me.

Indignant voices cry aloud— "We'd been there, within that I'd surely help a cry or plea."

The heart said you, but look at me. Yet, that's what I remembered as by my bed side. I had been there, within that I had thought in my heart that when the time came that someone needed me, I would be there to help. Not so. When my time came, I wasn't ready. It's easy to say, "If I had another chance, I'd be different." I am.

With a burst of energy the electric alarm awoke me completely. A new day had begun, and it was time for a rebirth of myself, and with it a reevaluation. This time I became aware from a watching willow to a feeding human. I made my decision. What's yours?

If you love to knock yourself out at party-giving, be sure you take into consideration which generation, and which sex, usually likes which kind of party, otherwise you'll end up feeling that all your hard work wasn't really appreciated. Some efforts are wasted on children, and some efforts are wasted on men.

A movie party at home is always a hit with the younger set. The toddlers and preschoolers enjoy Lassie films, or cartoons; older youngsters are delighted with the Disney shows and the early Laurel and Hardy films. Popcorn and soda, which they can eat and drink without getting messy, always gets off the show, is their favorite food. Just be sure the rugs are protected. Films of all kinds are available through film distributors in all major cities.

If you have a flair for really "party" planning, then every once in a while find an excuse to have a "hen-party." Then you can go all out with your talent. Set the table with fancy pastel or white cloth; your daintiest china and glasses; your best flatware, and flowers.

Dance King, Gene Kelly, Returns To T.V.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Gene Kelly will play his dancing form on the Jack Palance Show Saturday night, but it will mark only a temporary return to his hoofing heyday.

"Dancing is an avocation for me now," he remarked after a workout prior to taping for the Miami Beach telecast. "I don't know that I don't have to dance to be happy."

NOT EASY

It won't be an easy lesson, Kelly admitted. For 15 years on Broadway and in film, dancing was almost his whole existence. One who worked harder at it than Gene Kelly.

Even Fred Astaire, who was noted for his strict regimen, Kelly's style requires a different attitude that could be sustained only by constant fitness.

"Then in 1955 I tore the cartilage in my knee while skating," he said. "It was two whole years before I could dance again."

"For a guy who has been dancing all his life, that was tough to take."

But he will realize there was something else I could do to make a living." That was directing.

THEATRICALS MOVE

Kelly has just finished directing the most expensive musical of film history, "Hello, Dolly!"

Outside his 20th Century-Fox office stands a portion of the $2-million New York set on which he had been working. He doesn't mind it well, though on this film he will be shown in one day that I will in two weeks of directing. No doubt about it, the performers are the top dogs nowadays. He is pleased.

But he has no regrets about choosing direction over dancing. "There comes the point in every dancer's life when he's got to quit altogether or start cutting corners," he said. "I would like to require three months to make solid shapes, and another three months before I could get into the ring. Even then, I wouldn't be able to do what I used to do."

Kelly will continue with "Dolly" until

Conservatives Lack Faith In "The Open Society"

A new book, titled "The Open Society" (Morrow, July 23, $6.95) is particularly pertinent in a Presidential election year because it raises some of crucial importance such as the right of Americans to enter or leave the United States whenever they wish and the admission to the United States of foreigners and immigrants with views that some consider alien.

The author, Abba P. Schwartz, a former Assistant Secretary of State, Administrator of the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs and chief watchdog over immigration, refugee, travel controls and prisoner of war policies under Kennedy and Johnson until March 1966.

Then pressures against conservative interpretation of immigration laws by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk to sacrifice Schwartz on the alter of supposed political expediency.

EASED OUT

Schwartz was eased out of office. Ironically for him, Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., in the book's introduction, one of two indispensable collaborators to Kennedy's revision of existing immigration legislation and its more intelligent and humane administration. (The other was the then-Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy.)

John F. Kennedy's appointment of Schwartz in 1961 was momentous. It meant that the President was determined to end repressive practices whereby those with unpopular views were prevented from entering the United States.

On as asperger later, others would be less likely to be barred because of alleged consumerist behavior as in the famous Richard Burton case when granting him a visa was challenged by a member of Congress.

HATCHET JOB

What Washington newscaps called "a hatchet job" on Schwartz was really the killing of Kennedy's dreams to make immigration laws more liberal and less afraid. "Forever war Robert Manning, Editor of "The Atlantic Monthly," the author's account of the opposition to Kennedy's policies which Schwartz helped to prove that kind of people Joseph McCarthy entreated still wiggle in the woodwork of the Federal bureaucracy and some of the committees of the Congress."

The book exposes those who show their lack of faith in the American people through their irrational fear of foreign people and ideas. It also contains the most complete review of America's immigration and refugee policies.

Arthur Schlesinger evaluates the author as "a brilliant Washington lawyer with an extensive experience in refugee and immigration problems; a close friend of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and a shrewd, courageous and committed administrator."

As for the book's importance Schlesinger says: "An invaluable background... For the student of public administration, a fascinating account of the problems of a public servant..."

For the other reader, "a heartening... how devoted men can change the policy of our government so that national practices begin to live up to our ideals."

In John Kenneth Galbraith's opinion, "Abba Schwartz is the man who brought about a great and civilization revolution in the immigration laws. And this book is an important and interesting record of how it was done."

Every person who traces his ancestry, however remotely, to another than the United States should read it."

family with "... insanity runs in my family." In fact, "It practically gaffes."

The cast demonstrated overall competence, especially in overcoming such obstacles as poor lighting and lack of proper makeup.

ACT DRAGS

Mary Pederson, another aunt, amused the audience in her flighty, dehydrated manner. David E. Larsen, a character likeable as ever, Karlold added spark and pizzazz to his dead first act.

Staging seemed to be a hodge-podge in Act I. For the first twenty minutes the house appeared to be delivered upstairs.

Over-acting was evident throughout the production, but what could have been a dire delirious experience.

ARSSENIC AUNT

However, Zola Carter as Abby Brewster—who enjoys slipping into the role of a gentleman guest—succeeded in winning the audience with her sweet favorite-aunt act.

David R. Phillips, portraying Teddy Brewster, a demented old man obsessed with the notion that he is President Theodore Roosevelt, provided the audience with constant suspense.

Ronald Dally as Mortimer Brewster, another nephew, gave an adroit performance and cleverly sums up his

Speech Banquet Will Honor Dr. Earl Pardoe

A special banquet by the Speech Arts Association will honor Dr. T. Earl Pardoe on October 10 at 7 p.m.

Dr. Pardoe was the founding father of many prominent speech associations and activities including BYU's Department of Speech in 1919. He has been president of the Western Speech Association, and is a charter member.

He has also served as the president of the Utah Speech Association and Rocky Mountain Forensic League, as well as vice-president of the National Speech Association.

The spring Drama Festival was started under his supervision in 1922, and he personally supervised the festival until it became an integral vital to speech training in Utah.

Reservations for the banquet can be made through Beverly Berry at 332 N. 300 E. Provo. Tickets are $5.

Friday, following the banquet, is the fall convention of the Speech Arts Association of Utah. Registration and activities are centered at South High School. Activities include contests and demonstrations. Among the topics are Choral Readings, Legislative Forum, and Selected Papers.

Junior high, high school and the university will be discussed in other interest groups. Guest speaker at the evening dinner will be Dr. Don Faules, director of the speech program at the University of Utah. His topic is to be "Co-managing Theory—What's a Teacher To Do?"

Other activities on the speech and drama calendar include the Invitational Speech Meet at the College of Eastern Utah, the Alpine Forecast Festival, All Region Forensic Contest, State Forensic Competition, All-Region Drama Competition, the State Drama Festival at BYU and the Institutional Poetry Speaking Festival at Utah State University.

Walk And Arrive Early To Enjoy Game More

By Roger Gillespie
Assoc. Sports Editor

"Operation hoof it" is underway to encourage all those who possibly can, to walk to the Cougar home opener Saturday evening.

A crowd of 28,000 is expected for the

Fitness Class

Starts Soon

The Men's Physical Education Department will conduct a unique recreation program for full-time faculty and staff beginning October 1.

It affords the opportunity for those in poor physical condition both to get in shape and maintain their physical fitness.

Participants exercise two to three times per week with weights, calisthenics, and other activities designed to improve physical condition.

Those wishing to participate should phone BYU Ext. 2546 as soon as possible.

game and a group that size can create "Exordium type" headaches for the BYU Security Officers.

Provo City Police, Green Police and the Utah Highway Patrol will combine with BYU Security to make travel to and from the stadium as easy as possible.

Radio station KSL will also join the effort by relaying to listeners traffic buildup as they are reported by the four law enforcement agencies.

It should be remembered by those attending the game that the kickoff time has been moved to 7:30 p.m., which is a half hour earlier than the regular time of the last few seasons.

Captain Sam Nelson of BYU Security, discussing the problem, admitted, "If fans would learn to come to the football games early rather than wait until 15 minutes before kickoff, many of the difficulties would be avoided."

Those attending the game should keep three things in mind: 1) Walk, if at all possible, 2) Arrive early, 3) Be alert before kickoff time and 4) If you do get caught in the traffic, be courteous and patient.

The Daily Universe board of prognosticators again invites BYU students and faculty to challenge its predictions for the 1968 football season.

To enter your name on the national contest, simply clip the "prognostication sheet," circle the teams at the left you think will win in each of today's games, and take it to the Universe Office, 538 Wilkinson Center before 5 p.m. today or Friday.

Those persons submitting the entry with the most correct predictions will have his predictions next week appear alongside those of the permanent board. If scores are included, they will decide the winner in the event of a tie.

This week's guests are former Universe Sports Editor Gary Wood and Glen Willardson, last year's winner.

Football Forecasting Interesting Challenge

Football season is in full bloom once again and in past years, the DAILY UNIVERSE board of prognosticators once again invites BYU students and faculty to challenge its prediction for the top football games across the country from week to week.

Along with the BYU-Louisville game that catches each of our minds with keen interest, another of this week's top pluggin' football contests being fought between Note Dame and Purdue, the nation's number one and number two teams. Such games add spice to the weekend.

This season the student body can match its football wits against the following individuals who are the best of the prognosticators: Jack Bailey, UNIVERSITY sports editor; Roger Gillespie, assistant sports editor; Gary Dayton of the Wilkinson Center Barber Shop; Dr. Guy Carlson who gives the students his predictions via an IBM computer and twoguests.

One of the guests on each week's board will be the preceding week's top student or faculty prognosticator. The other will be chosen from the coaching staff or some other prominent university position.

Excitement Mounts BYU vs. Cyclones esterday night against Iowa State, U will employ a bit of strategy that might just work.

The practice has worked well for the Cougars, and the idea may connect for Saturday when they start Terry again.

oxford has won the nod as probable favorite against Iowa State when the games come to town Saturday night. A home opener for the Cougars is set for 7:30 p.m. in BYU Stadium.

anford, of course, has already established himself as a creditable quarterback, having earned a position on the varsity all of last season. But on the Cougar staff has also called on a 165-lb. junior to do double duty, taking him as a defensive safety as

Although he didn't start the game off Western Michigan, Terry came off the bench to help spark the offense on a drive that put the Cougars ahead for good.

JET SET

xford will be joined by a youthful jet foscene in the Cougar backfield, sophomore Kip Jackson, a 195-pounder from Los Altos, Calif., will be starting at back and junior Ron Wakley will be backup. The fallback chores will go another junior, Dave Swanson, 193, a turned missionary who lives in Salt Lake City.

Swanson was the club's leading ringer in the win over Western Michigan, putting in 51 yards in 14 runs through the big hole line.

It's hoped that this youthful combination will be able to trigger the upsurge offensive game, which had an awkward start last week. The Cougar running game, particularly, should be in form this week.

all will be starting in the absence of and Mike Zeller, who was injured in it week's game. Another player injured in the game at Kalamazoo, middle guard Sam Hanna, remains a question mark.

Rick Dixon, who was out with an injury for nearly two weeks, will be back in the starting lineup on defense as middle guard. The Cougars will also be strengthened in that position with the return of John Lapey.

In other changes on the defensive unit, Steve Denney will back up Tim Roberts as the strong linebacker, and Tom Pollard will take over the second team position at safety behind Larry Echohawk.

Annual Band Night Highlights Contest

People who are impressed by 76 trombones will probably be overwhelmed by the Band Night production being put together for the BYU-Lawson State football game Saturday night.

The 20 high school bands who will be appearing in the halftime show will include 150 trombones, 275 snare drums, 150 percussion players and nearly 100 tubas. In all, about 1,500 bandmen will be performing.

The bands, coming from all over the Beehive State, will include a group from Uintah County High School, Las Vegas, Nevada.

This year Band Night will also feature a salute to our fighting men in the armed services.

Irish, Purdue Clash In Game Of Week

Notre Dame's Fighting Irish hold an impressive record on the road of college football, following an impressive win over highly-regarded Oklahoma, 43-21, in their season opener.

Purdue, rated first a week ago and still maintaining a top-conference slot in the Associated Press set the stage for this Saturday's clash with Irish by subduing a weak Virginia team, 44-6.

THIRD-RANKED

Third-rated Southern California met two other top teams from West Coast's O.J. ("Orange Juice") Simpson to edge Minnesota, 21-20, while Penn State conquered the Middle's Navy 31-6.

Heart Attack

Fells Hodges

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) - Doctors confirmed Wednesday that Gil Hodges, manager of the New York Mets, has suffered a minor heart attack.

Dr. Linton Bishop, a heart specialist, said Hodges had one of his standard electro-cardiograms showing evidence of a "small coronary thrombosis," but described Hodges' condition as good.

A coronary thrombosis is a blood clot usually caused by a heart attack. Bishop's findings were confirmed by Dr. J. Willis Hurst, chief of medicine at Emory University.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Mr. Hodges will be back in full time in a few weeks," Bishop said.

The doctors advised Mrs. Hodges, who flew from New York to Atlanta early Wednesday, to be with her husband, that proper rest and treatment Hodges would be able to resume his duties next spring.

Bishop informed Mets' General Manager John J. Murphy of Hodges' condition Wednesday afternoon and told Murphy that Hodges was well enough to discuss the upcoming National League draft with him.

The Mets' manager also was well enough to name pitching coach Rube Walker as acting manager for the rest of the season.

Meanwhile, doctors said Hodges was admitted to the hospital Tuesday night after he complained of chest pain during a game between the Mets and the Atlanta Braves.

An initial electro-cardiogram showed changes in heart pattern, but a diagnosis was withheld pending the second test.

Industrial Production at New High

Industrial production rose to a new record and continued to inch up in July, the Federal Reserve Board reported. The board said that key business indicator reached 165.4 per cent, seasonally adjusted, of the 1957-59 average in July, compared to the revised figure of 164.7 in June and the July 1967 level of 156.8.

In explaining the increase, the board said that auto assemblies, after allowance for the model changeover period, continued at the high June rate.

Housing Must Apply Now

With the application deadline today and a seminar Saturday, the Homecoming Office will proceed to decorate on-and off-campus housing in shades of BYU.

Interested groups should submit applications at 119 ELWC by 5 p.m.

Information and ideas will be handed to all competitors at the Saturday seminar in Wilkinson Center Ballrooms S and 6 from 9 a.m. until noon.

Prizes will be given for theme, originality and humor, with a sweepstakes award being made. Homecoming Chairman Sue Woodward said Thursday.

The 1968 theme is "A Season for Remembering."

Entries for Homecoming housing decorations are due by 5 p.m. today in 119 ELWC. A special information seminar will be from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday in Ballrooms S and 6.

'Y' Placement Center

Gets Set For Seniors

Seniors interested in securing post-graduation employment may register now with the Placement Center, a university service which assists graduates in finding jobs. Center by off-campus employers for the purpose of interviewing prospective graduates or listing job openings.

Many of these employers begin their search early in the fall, and the number of positions listed promises to be higher than ever.

When seniors register with the Center, a permanent folder of information about them is begun, including materials which will be valuable in securing graduate school opportunities as well as employment.

Because those materials are maintained permanently by the university, all seniors should register, even if their after-graduation plans have been arranged, as might be the case with men and their military obligation.

To register, students should come to the Placement Center Office at D-260 Smoot Administration Building and obtain a registration packet.

Those who acquired packets during class presentations or at Registration should return them to the Placement Center.

Unless you are really an expert and determined shopper, it is often wise to ignore the end-of-the-season clothing sales. It takes real willpower not to settle for a color, size or style that is not quite right, when you find a terrific mark down. Or you may come home with a fantastic buy in a raincoat when what you really needed was a suit!

McCarthy Ponders Endorsing HH

ST. PAUL (AP)—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is considering appearing on nationwide television October 10 to announce his support for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the St. Paul Pioneer Press said today.

The Minnesota senator has not endorsed any candidate since he lost the Democratic presidential nomination to Humphrey in August.

A story in El Escor of the newspaper's Washington bureau said McCarthy's office confirmed Wednesday that negotiations have begun with the Columbia Broadcasting System regarding the availability of 30 minutes of prime television time.

McCarthy returns to Washington, D.C., today after a two-week vacation on the French Riviera. He is expected to decide this weekend whether to go ahead with the television speech according to the report.

The article said McCarthy has been told by his close friends and advisers "if by his wife, Abigail, that he will be blamed for Humphrey's defeat if the vice president loses the election."

Fun With Photography

By BOBBY ALLEN

PICTURES OF YESTER-YEAR

To the college-age group (and the younger ones too),

If your parents had taken enough pictures of all the wacky things they did when they were in high school and college, I'll bet they wouldn't think the things you do were nearly as diggy as they seem to be.

When we went to school they used to cut a "y" in the boys' hair to show goodness off as "Y" day. Live goldfish were on the menu; and did you ever see a raccoon coat or a pair of plus-four knickerbockers?

There was a time when the boys wore corduroy pants to school, and the girls in the "in" group was to let them get so dirty they would stand up. What if we bad momma pictures of some of these things?

Well, anyway, you can take pictures of pictures of them that's what's going on now, and remember that one ingredient of an interesting picture is its age. So start your pictures aging by taking lots of them now.

Some fellow sent me a picture of his grandfather and grandmother's home on East Center taken in 1901. There was a picket fence all around the house, which is now a house, and the house is now seventy feet high (a black elm) was about five feet tall. Grandmother's brother, her mother, and one of her brothers and his wife were standing on the lawn by the fence and the clothes they were wearing were unbelievable.

So take care of your negatives, and someday they will be as interesting as these.

I am talking about.

If the pictures were good in the first place, they are more interesting late, but even bad pictures that are old are immensely fun to look at.

Anti-War Leaders Plan To Mock Candidates

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaders in the anti-war movement have drawn up protest tactics for a concerted attempt to disrupt presidential campaign meetings planned for an assault on Washington during inaugural ceremonies Jan. 20.

The demonstrations, some of which have already begun, will be directed by the protest leaders who led the Chicago protests during the Democratic National Convention.

'ON NOTICE'

"The purpose is to let the new president know that the protesters aren't going to let up, that they aren't going to disappear just because Lyndon Johnson has," said Dennis Davis, project director of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

Davis, working with several leading peace activists including Tom Hayden, founder of the left-wing Students for a Democratic Society, outlined in an interview his protest plans for the next six weeks.

Attempts by demonstrators to shout down presidential candidates Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard Nixon wherever they appear;

—A mock grand jury investigation of the draft, seeking testimony from returning soldiers;

—Nation-wide demonstrations demanding amnesty for soldiers who contend they cannot fight communism in Vietnam;

—Electoral free demonstrations against both Nixon's and Humphrey's candidates;

VOTER STRIKE

A voter strike with participants voting only for presidential and congressional peace candidates, and —Attempts by demonstrators in Minnesota and New York to turn in their draft cards to Humphrey and Nixon at two separate locations.

Compromised exempt from protest plans of peace movement leaders is former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, the American Independent Party presidential candidate.

U.N. Envoy Resigns

Washington (AP) — President Johnson announced Thursday the resignation of George W. Ball, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, and named Washington Post editor James Russell Wallin to succeed him.

Ball said he plans to join the diplomatic service. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee for president,

"I have taken this step so that I may devote all my time and energy now between now and Jan. 5 to help assure the election of Hubert Humphrey and the defeat of Richard Nixon," Ball said in a statement issued at the State Department simultaneously with Johnson's announcement.

Ball, 58, was a long-time U.S. diplomat in the State during the Kennedy administration and the earlier years of the Johnson administration. He was brought back to public service in April 1967 when Johnson named him to the post. His predecessor, Arthur J. Goldberg, Goldberg is also assisting in the Humphrey campaign.

Wallin, 64, became managing editor of the Washington Post in 1947 and became editor and executive vice president of the paper in 1960.

Gold Output Increases

Total gold production in South Africa during the first six months of this year was 15,659 million ounces, more than 2 per cent above the corresponding period last year, according to the Chamber of Mines.

Portugal Picks New Premier

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Marcello Caetano, 62-year-old lawyer and politician, was proclaimed premier of Portugal yesterday, and urged to replace Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, who suffered a stroke 10 days ago and has not regained consciousness.

President America Thomas made the announcement in a television speech to the nation that marked the end of Salazar's 40-year rule of Portugal, longest tenure of any 20th century political leader.

Salazar, 79, was in an oxygen tent at Lisbon's Red Cross Hospital. His chances of survival were regarded as slim.

Caetano said it caused him "deep distress" to replace the aged ruler, but added that the move was inevitable.

The speech was the climax of an agonizing period for the white-haired, 73-year-old president whose appointment of Caetano was his first constitutional decision since taking office in Salazar's shadow a decade ago.

Some Portuguese expect Caetano, although of English background, may give Portugal liberal reforms since Salazar

One of the biggest issues facing the new premier is the future of the colonial empire. Lisbon has been insisting on greater self-rule to the territories of Angola, Mozambique and Guinea in southern Africa.

"We won't make any direct attack on Wallace," Davis said. "He's a manifestation of the whole confused problem in this country. We feel that confronting Wallace would only add to the confusion."

Leaders of the antiwar movement conclude that persons willing to join them in overt action are a tiny minority of Americans. Because of this, they say, they will hammer at their point loudly and continuously to recruit in秘密 what they lack in numbers.

MARCHES

In a telephone interview from Oakland, Calif., Hayden said peace groups, after considering at least one, may have to march masses in Washington.

"What we do in Washington is conditional on the outcome of the election," Hayden said. "If we can't get up to go to the House of Representatives we will wait to be around to make our feelings clear."

"If the winter seems to show total inability to deal with the Vietnam war and the like situation, we'll be there when he's inaugurated. And he'll know where we're there."

"We've gone to keep the pressure on," Davis said. "It's costing us a fortune to strap away supplies to keep us here."

Young amateur musicians, ranging up to the age of 21, now number approximately 17,100,000 in the United States, whereas adult amateurs number 26,800,000. This was an increase of more than 1% over the previous year for the youngsters, and about 700,000 for the adults. Credit is given to new methods and philosophies in music teaching, more leisure time for adults, and the growing interest by parents and educators that music belongs in the lives of young people, and contributes to their well-roundedness.

Titan 3

Rocket Hurls Payload Into Space

CAPET KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With bold precision, a powerful Titan 3 rocket Thursday sprayed four military satellites like buckshot into space orbits.

The payloads, on paths ranging out 22,300 miles, are pioneering defense Department concepts in missile communications, rocket navigation and mapping the earth's oceans.

"All four satellites are working effectively. The mission went off about as well as an Air Force test," reported 6½ hours after the noisy-tall Titan 3 thundered away in Cape Kennedy.

The rocket, most powerful of the Defense Department's arsenals, blasted off at 3:53 a.m. EDT, just under the breadth of a second late. With its solid-fuel booster engines operating, total thrust of 2.4 million pounds and a tail of fire more than 500 feet long, the huge rocket carried a payload in the third stage. Since the Titan 3 was aloft, the key success was the versatile third stage, a multi-start vehicle capable of wide shifts in orbit.

The stage, called a space switch engine, had jettisoned a bundle of satellites into a low earth orbit 95 miles high. An hour later, it fired again to shoot into a great elliptical path ranging from 113 to 22,300 miles high.

An atmospheric study satellite was kicked into that path. Then the switch engine ignited a third time and in quick succession ejected the other three payloads into their separate paths 22,300 miles high.

The major payload was named LES6, for Lincoln. It is a forerunner of a tactical communications satellite that could link battlefield units, military aircraft and ships.

Five mobile stations—two on Army jeeps, two on trucks and one on a van—will be used to test with the payload, which was placed on a stationary outpost above the equator west of South America.

A primary goal of the two environmental study satellites was to monitor and chart radiation to provide a better understanding of how particles act in and out of the Van Allen Radiation Belts.

The fourth satellite radiated data on how heat transfers to a fluid in space weightlessness, with liquid helium serving as the fluid. Purpose is to aid in the design of future rocket and spacecraft propulsion systems.

Motor travel is said to be the major source of the litter that mars the scenic beauty of America. Some 61 percent of the litter-prevention experts recently surveyed by Keep America Beautiful Inc., report that even trash-hunting picnickers do not leave as much litter behind them as do motorists speeding along the highway.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant disclosed Thursday he would name a group of experts to study possible uses and effects of chemical and bacteriological weapons.

In his annual report to the General Assembly, Thant said technical development of such weapons has greatly increased their capability "to inflict unimaginable suffering, disease and death."

"There has been a growing tendency," he said, "to use some

Guard Unit Resists Viet Callup

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—More than 100 members of a National Guard unit here have pledged to support any necessary legal action to prevent their being shipped to fight in Vietnam.

That pledge was adopted Wednesday night at a meeting here of the 600-man 2nd Battalion, 127th Infantry.

About 175 members of that unit attended the meeting and 118 of them agreed to the pledge. The unit's Headquarters and Service units include men from the metropolitan Louisville area, while members of the battalion's three batteries are from Carrollton, Bardstown and Elizabethtown.

Sgt. William S. Johnson of Louisville, said "we're speaking out not to oppose the war in Vietnam. America's participation in that war. We want to know the background of why our callup was illegal."

Johnson explained that when members of the Guard enlisted, their contract with the U.S. government provided that they would be called to active duty only in the case of a national emergency or a declaration of war.

Dam Center

Dedicated

PAGE, Ariz. (AP)—With Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall as main speaker, the visitor center at Glen Canyon Dam was formally dedicated yesterday.

The center, named for long-time Arizona Sen. Carl Hayden, was completed and officially opened to the public last April. Glen Canyon Dam is near Page, in northern Arizona. Most of Lake Powell is in Utah.

Immediately all the doors were open—(Act 16:26).

There is a place, a way, a work for all of us. Let us see ourselves purposefully occupied, giving and growing. God sees us in this way, and He will show us how we can live this way. New doors are continually opening to us, for we have much to give.

Most of the soldiers who attended Wednesday night's meeting are currently on leave home from Ft. Hood, Tex. They are scheduled to go to Vietnam Oct. 21.

War More

Likely Now

—Dayan

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Defense Minister Moshe Dayan says assumption of war in the Middle East is more likely now than it was a few months ago.

Dayan, speaking to Negro settlers Wednesday, and commenting on increased activity of Israel's bombers, said Cairo probably does not feel able to resume warfare and has decided to help Jordan by heating up the border.

He said the Egyptian position is becoming more active after recent decision at the Arab foreign ministers' conference in Cairo to use Iraqi army units stationed in Jordan "to the extent necessary" and also to station units of the Syrian army in Jordan.

'Joy Of Womanhood' Scheduled By AWS

Mother's Day is next spring, but a special Mother-Daughter Weekend is only a week away.

The event, sponsored by Associated Women Students, will be October 4 through 6, and will include many special programs.

Girls are asked to extend an invitation to their mothers now so that the "Mo's" can get baby-sitters and plan to attend.

Among the many events scheduled will be a Mother-Daughter Reception, a furniture and place-setting display, a fashion show luncheon, and a holiday demonstration.

Victory Stomp Set Saturday

The hard rock sounds of the "Honey and Soul" will be featured at Saturday night's victory dance following the football game against the Iowa State Cyclones.

The dance begins at 10 p.m. in the ELW Center gym and is co-sponsored by AWS and ASB.

Cost is 50 cents per person, stag or date, and dress is casual.

'Students Get In' ...

Fillmore Sets Ticket Rules

"No student will ever be turned away from a BYU home football game," promises Jim E. Fillmore, chairman of the student ticket board.

What that means is that activity card holders will be admitted without charge to the contests regardless of whether they sit in the sections reserved for card holders, group block seating or general admission.

Fillmore urged students to wear white and help present the traditional half-time card stunts. The card stunt section with 1,500 seats is reserved between the 50-yard line and the 30-yard lines—the best in the house.

Tickets to these seats will be distributed Saturday at the Cougar Stadium east ticket booth from 5:30 p.m. until game time.

Those picking up card stunt section tickets need not enter the game immediately.

BLOCK SEATING

Groups who have assured themselves of block seating are to pick up their tickets from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the clock room next to the Center main desk.

All remaining tick distributed at the east st beginning two hours before student may purchase regular price tickets section must have a pur of acti order to do so. Each stud his card at the game, also.

programs was one spent in desert sands of southern New Mexico.

TAKE CLASSES

A half dozen BYU students studied at New Mexico State University, where they took classes in military history, survival techniques and compass problems and weapons.

Also on the agenda were drills at dawn, formations, and military parades.

Near the end of the training sessions students set up camp for three days at Sand Hills Ranch, N.M., and Fort Bliss, Tex.

Practical application was the emphasis as they planned small attack and defense maneuvers, and tackled their way through map and compass problems.

Climaxing the field jaunt was a run through Ft. Bliss's "Vietnam Village," a mock Southeast Asian village complete with booby traps, mines, and mock "enemy" soldiers.

All was not "grit and grime" for the cadets, however. The course's end was celebrated with a dinner party at the post officers' club.
